

Fighting Man

You can have your Army Khakis,
And your Navy Blues,
But here's a different fighting man,
I'll introduce to you.
His uniform is unlike,
Any you've ever seen,
The Germans called him Devil Dog,
His title is Marine.

Marine Boot Camp

He was trained in Paris Island,
The place that God forgot,
The sand was fourteen inches deep,
The sun was blazing hot.
He awakened up one morning,
In front of his rack he'll stand,
And in through the doorway walked,
A giant of a man.

He turned and faced this young Marine,
With eyes as cold as steel,
He said, I am your DI,
And this is for real.
I'll make your life as miserable,
As miserable as I can,
And when you finally leave this place,
You'll be a fighting man.
You'll be a rifle expert,
You'll know your weapon well,
And when you finally leave this place,
You know you've paid your dues.

The Cowboy

Hey, Hey, what do you say,
I'm goin' to the rod-e-o today. I drew a bad bull, heard he was a bear,
But I can hang for 8, so I just don't care. Tie up, bear down, sittin' on my bull,
I'm just waitin' for the gate to pull. Out from the chute blows my old ride,
It's a wonder that I'm still alive. Just right then the 8 seconds pass,
I jump right off of that bull's ass. Quick, turn around and what do I see?
That old bull come a-chargin' at me. I pull a cut-down 12-gauge from my hip,
And send that bull on a little trip. I'm the meanest cowboy that you ever did see,
U.S.M.C Infantry.
